Re: The 13th Annual CAPP A Conference

To whom it may concern,

I am writing to enthusiastically nominate Salita, a graduate student at the Johnson Shoyama Graduate School of Public Policy, University of Saskatchewan, to present her research at the upcoming 2025 CAPP A Annual Conference. I believe that Salita's work on farmers' responses to regulatory frameworks governing agricultural big data is of high quality and significance in the field.

Salita is currently pursuing a Master of Public Policy degree under my supervision and has consistently demonstrated a strong commitment to academic excellence. Using a survey experiment, her research focusing on governance of agricultural big data and its potential impact on farmers' trust and willingness to share farm data has the potential to make a significant contribution to the existing body of knowledge in governance and public administration. This opportunity will not only allow her to showcase her work but also foster meaningful discussions with peers and experts in the field.

Attending this conference and presenting her research represents a valuable professional development opportunity for Salita. Not only will she gain experience in presenting a paper at an academic venue, the networking opportunities the conference offers are particularly important at this stage of her professional career. I fully support Salita's participation in the 2025 CAPP A Annual Conference. Thank you for considering this nomination.

Sincerely,

Yang Yang
